A Letter from Rabbi Bigman

We Jews are obligated to be part of our community. At our Volunteer Recognition / Board Installation Shabbat service in September, I noted:

In Pirkei Avot the great teacher Hillel is quoted as saying: "Al tifrosh min ha-tzibbur -- Do not separate yourself from the community."

Rashi teaches that this means that one should not separate oneself from the community when it is experiencing difficulties so that one can be united with it when it experiences joy. Bartinoro adds that one who will not be with the community in periods of sorrow will never be able to be with it during celebratory times.

In this case, I was, of course, referring to the community that is Congregation Shaarey Zedek. But we could also understand this teaching to mean the Jewish community as a whole (both locally and worldwide) and / or the general community (again, both locally and worldwide). When we participate in interfaith programs in our community, such as the Interfaith Clergy Association of Greater Lansing's worship service this month or when we donate to national organizations to help victims of natural disasters or when we donate to help people in Ukraine during wartime, etc., we are not separating ourselves from the community. We are doing our duty to repair the world (tikkun olam).

This month we can participate in our most important civic duty as American citizens: VOTE. Rabbi Daniel Gropper, in an excellent article titled "This Year, Bring Torah into the Voting Booth," noted the joy he felt as a new American citizen being able to vote for the first time:

The Talmudic sage, Rabbi Yitzhak, taught that "A ruler is not to be appointed unless the community is first consulted" (Babylonian Talmud Berachot 55a). He further explained that in the Torah, Bezalel could not be chosen to build the Tabernacle without approval of the community. This ethic of participation in communal decision making is embedded in Jewish thought and accounts for the enthusiastic engagement of Jews in the electoral process.

I moved to the U.S. from Canada and voted for the first time in an American presidential election in 2016, after becoming a citizen. Like a convert who chooses a new religion and takes on its obligations with a high degree of commitment, I take a citizen's responsibility to vote very seriously. When I stepped into the voting booth, I brought to this sacred rite four ritual objects: my voter registration card, my naturalization certificate, a copy of the U.S. Constitution, and a Hebrew Bible. The first three communicated my right vote, the fourth served as my guide.

Before marking my ballot, I opened the Bible to Leviticus 19, known as The Holiness Code, and took its teachings to heart... As I marked my ballot, I asked myself: Which of these candidates did I think would best uphold these sacred values? It was a proud moment. [www.rac.org]

When you vote this year, consider what Judaism has to teach and vote according to your conscience. And on Thanksgiving Day, take some time to be grateful for all that you have -- including your right to vote.

Freedom of Choice, Freedom of Will: Why and How Do They Apply to the Torah?

Wednesday, November 16 at 6:30 p.m.

Chas Feger was brought up in a non-observant Jewish-Christian family. As a college student at The Ohio State University, he began utilizing the vast Schottenstein wing of the Main Library to study various aspects of Judaism-kabbalah, Talmud, Midrash, mitzvot, mysticism, etc. This grew into a life-long mission to discover and re-discover the ways of the Torah and learn how various parts of study, practice and prayer work together. Currently working on what he calls the "Unified Theory of Judaism," he blends Torah, philosophy and science in a similar way to Philo, Saadia Gaon and Maimonides.

Born and raised in South Detroit, he is proud to be a member of Shaarey Zedek.

Chas and his family currently reside in Mount Pleasant, Michigan.

Please let us know if you will be attending by texting the words "Lashon Harah" or "Freedom" and your name to Margot at (412) 614 - 0310.

Ongoing Multi-session Classes (Drop-ins Welcome)

Midrash and Mayhem: Adventures in Genesis

Thursdays at 8:00 p.m. via Zoom November 3, 10, 17

If you thought the book of Genesis was wild on its own just wait until you see how the ancient rabbis interpreted it! In this weekly study session, we'll consider how the rabbis understood famous elements of the opening chapters of the Torah--from why the Torah begins with the letter Bet to what fruit was on the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil.

The Talmud's Top Ten Clickbait

Sundays at 2:00 p.m. In-Person November 6, 13, 20

These "Top Ten" texts are the reasons people continue to study Talmud. What happens when four rabbis enter "The Orchard"? What's up with demon bowls? How did a debate over an oven lead to the rabbis overruling God? Is our covenant with God legal? Why did Yochanan ben Zakkai fake his death--and how did that save rabbinic Judaism? We'll study key Talmud passages in bite sized pieces that are appropriate for all skill levels.

Register here for Midrash and Mayhem: <https://bit.ly/RegisterforMidrashandMayhem>

Register for The Talmud's Top 10 Clickbait by texting "Top Ten" and your name to Margot at (412) 614-0310.

Justice: Empowering Women in the 21st Century

Our Guest Speaker

Rabbi Marla J. Feldman

Executive Director of the Women of Reform Judaism

Friday, December 2

Dinner 6 p.m.

Worship 7 p.m.

Shaarey Zedek Sisterhood is honored to welcome to our congregation Rabbi Marla J. Feldman. A Reform rabbi and lawyer, she was previously Director of Development of the Union for Reform Judaism (URJ) and Director of the Commission on Social Action of Reform Judaism.

Before joining the URJ staff, Rabbi Feldman worked in the Jewish Community Relations field, serving communities in Detroit and Delaware. She also taught as adjunct faculty at the University of Detroit-Mercy and the Widener University College of Law in Wilmington, DE, and served congregations in Sarasota and Orlando, FL.

If you would like to join us for dinner prior to worship, all we ask is that you RSVP to Shawn Olds at 896-5199 by November 28.

There is NO CHARGE for the dinner, but donations are welcome.
